"THE SARI SHOP" BY RUPA BAJWA" PENGUIN BOOKS. "The Sari Shop" is a simple story of hopelessness of the underclass. It is about social isolation in an urban setting where there is hardly any societal support or a network of social services to help those in poverty and destitution. It is a story of deprivation and rejection.

THE SARI SHOP. Ramchand is a tenderly drawn character, reminiscent of Naipaul's innocent strivers, and the rest of the cast is vividly sketched. There are several typical first-novel flaws: the narrative is slow in the first half, and Bajwa's transitions between her character-driven subplots are occasionally uneven and erratic.
